

- WordRake Enterprise: Technical and Licensing Details –

WordRake Enterprise is a complimentary customization for volume purchases over $3,500. Unlike the standard version of WordRake (which requires manually entering a license key into each machine), WordRake Enterprise is embedded with an enterprise license that automatically activates in the background, which eliminates the need to manually enter license keys, requires no action by users, and ensures all users have the same expiration date. WordRake Enterprise runs entirely on the local the machine; it never communicates with the cloud or any device.

WordRake Enterprise is licensed per user, rather than the standard version's per-machine licensing, allowing you, for example, to install the software to additional machines for licensed users who may have a second work computer. WordRake Enterprise features flexible installation and licensing technology to accommodate maximum-security environments and virtualized desktop infrastructure.

WordRake (standard) vs. WordRake Enterprise Summary

	WordRake (standard)	WordRake Enterprise
Licensing:	Per machine	Per user
License activation:	Requires a license key to be pasted into each machine.	License activation is automatic, in the background, no action required by user.
Communicates with the Cloud?	Briefly for license validation, only when license key is entered.	Never communicates with the cloud.
Compatible with non-persistent virtualized desktops?	No	Yes
Adding new users:	New users are added by purchasing new licenses from the website. (Licenses with different purchase dates will have different expiration dates.)	Add new users immediately, with the same expiration as your existing users, by emailing sales@wordrake.com . (Price for new users is discounted for time elapsed since original purchase.)

(Except as noted above, all other functionality is identical for both versions.)
